Solution: When p is true and q is false, then $p \rightarrow q$ is true, $q \rightarrow p$ is true and $p \rightarrow (q)$ is true. (Therefore, both p and q are true) Here, $p \rightarrow q$ is not true as a true statement cannot imply a false statement. Question 4: $\sim (p \rightarrow q) \rightarrow (\sim p \rightarrow q)$ is equivalent to _____.

~~Mathematical Reasoning — Mathematics Learning~~

Logical and mathematical reasoning is key to knowing mathematics and sailing through the world of practical math. Doing, or applying mathematical principles in real life is a creative act, and reasoning is the basis of that act. It is a very useful way to make sense of the real world and nurture mathematical thinking.

~~Mathematical Reasoning — Types of Maths Logical Reasoning ...~~

When faced with a mathematical challenge, reasoning helps us to make use of relevant prior knowledge such as how to tackle this 'type' of problem or a particular calculation method that could prove useful. The reasoning involved is complex and unique to the individual, as each of us has a different mix of past mathematical experiences. 2.

~~Reasoning: Identifying Opportunities (Article)~~

Reasoning in maths is the process of applying logical and critical thinking to a mathematical problem in order to work out the correct strategy to use (and as importantly, not to use) in reaching a solution. Reasoning is sometimes seen as the glue that bonds pupils' mathematical skills together; it's also seen as bridging the gap between fluency and problem solving, allowing pupils to use their fluency to accurately carry out problem solving.

~~Developing Maths Reasoning in KS2: The Mathematical Skills ...~~

Mathematical reasoning is a critical skill which enables students to analyze a given hypothesis without any reference to a particular context or meaning. In layman words, when a scientific inquiry or statement is examined, the reasoning is not based on an individual's opinion. Derivations and proofs require a factual and scientific basis.
